Mother Earth - Boreal Beauty of the Peace - Scavenger Hunt

1. I have eyes of black and yellow; I am a feathery handsome fellow. Don't be sho	cked I look surprised; I am little, with big, curious eyes! What species of owl am I? (S	ee page
2. Juicy and sweet, what a treat! White blossoms produce wild berries to eat!
In the Beaver language, my name means "little heart." What kind of berry am I' 44)	? (page
3. I have legs of eight, my famous trait. I can jump for you! Would you like to take too? What is the name of our eight-legged, eight-eyed friend? (p. 157)	my photo
4. I have hooves, antlers and ears, but I'm not a moose, and I'm not a deer. My Free is Wapiti. I'm calling. Can you hear me? (p.226)	ench name
5. These birds call all year long from the trees, cheering our hearts with a "Chickacone has a black cap; the other has brown. What two kinds of birds make this so (p.103-105)
6. I am painted orange and yellow; my green leaves rise up below my petals. A bor painting by Marsha Hayward reveals a flower whose name has three words. Ple pick me! I'm a rare beauty! What's my name? (p.83)
7. You'll see me in Spring; purple fuzzy flowers I bring. Even in the snow, I will p grow! What kind of flower am I? (p. 56-59 and 84)	— op out and
8. There are over 1,200 photos in the Mother Earth book. How many photographe you look? (See the cover plus pages 142-145.)	rs? Did than a house cat. I was a kitten, but we kittens grow, and develop big paws for walking o snow. What kind of cool cat am I? (p.234)

10. Some of us are grey and some of us are black. We howl, hunt, and hang out as a pack. He many Grey Wolves can you see camouflaged amongst the coniferous trees? (p. 236-238)
11. I can dance beautifully, but I don't have legs. How can that be? (p.268-279) What am I?
What does my name mean in Cree?
12 If a baby goose is a gosling, is a baby moose a mosling? If not, then what? (p. 218)
14. I have wings, but I'm not a bird. I'm not a butterfly, and I'm not a bee. My babies are called flying pups, for I am a mammal, you see! What am I? (p. 214)
15. I am a symbol of promise and hope. My name in the Beaver language means
16. My Cree name is "maskwa." My Beaver name is "sas." My French name is "ours noir." I you know what I am? (p.242-249)
17. I used to be called a Whiskey Jack, but now I'm a Jay. I'm your national bird. Have you heard my new name? (p.186)
18. The mighty Peace River starts out small in BC, but as it flows, it grows, you see!
Add the Smoky River with the Wapiti, the Notikewin, Wabasca, and their tributaries.
Follow it north like an eagle flying free. Hear the roar of a waterfall as wide as you can s
What's the widest waterfall in North America? (p.259-262)

18. I m wild and prickly, pink, and free, and from my seed pods (p.41) you can make tea.
(p.60-61) What am I?
19. I am herbivorous, which means I eat plants. I'm a big quadruped with hooves, not hands. My French name is bison des bois, and I roam free in the Chinchaga.
see p.216-217)
20. I'm a short-tailed weasel, and some call me vermin,
But my winter coat is white, and then my name is (p. 209)
21. I am an owl who is active in the day. I come from the land of the midnight sun. 'Twas on the tundra I used to play in the summer; but it's winter, so here I come!
(p.191, 193-195)
22. Absorbing water is my super power; I love to soak up the rain. I live in forests and bogs and fens. If I get dried out, I might look dead. But pour some water on my head, and I'll come to life again! What kind of rootless plant am I? (p.18-21)
How many different species can you find on these pages?
23. I may look like northern lights, but do not be deceived;
I'm an intriguing arc in the sky, and my new name is(p.275)
24. We are vegetarian hydro engineers with a pool in our back yard. The water attracts wildlife like ducks, moose, and deer. The importance of our work is abundantly clear - to keep water on the landscape year after year, as a team we work very hard.
What five-fingered friend with a toothy grin is this? (p.212-213)
25. The author who created the Mother Earth book takes pictures from way up high! How does she get there? Does she have wings? Does she know how to fly? (p.128-137, 281)
26. I am the antlered ungulate featured on your 25 cent piece. Rudolf is my relative; don't tease him about his nose, please!
What species am I? (p.229-231)
What is an ungulate? (p. 216)
How many species of ungulates do we have in the Peace Country?

by MotherEarthBook.ca